

PROGRAM OFFERING FREE FARM-FOCUSED MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES

Affordability and accessibility are the top barriers for farmers seeking mental health services, per an American Farm Bureau Federation survey. During May Mental Health Awareness Month, the Iowa Farm Bureau reminds farmers support is readily available — at no cost — through Personal Assistance Services (PAS). Farm families can access personalized, ongoing counseling through PAS. It is facilitated by rural mental health clinicians, many of whom have a farming background or understand the unique challenges farming communities face.

They offer tailored support for stress, anxiety, sleep issues, substance abuse and more. Additionally, Iowa Farm Bureau has compiled a comprehensive list of mental health services, Iowa-based resources and suicide prevention hotlines that assist all Iowans in their pursuit of wellness. For more information, visit iowafarmbureau.com/farm-stress.
