JEFFERSON COUNTY CATTLEMAN SCHOLARSHIPS

The Jefferson County Cattlemen awarded two $2,500 scholarships to local high school seniors with a passion and dedication to the agricultural industry. The 2024 Scholarship Winners are Briana Steele of Fairfield High School and Lilian Buie of Pekin High School. Briana Steele is the daughter of Jason and Carrie Steele (Lockridge, IA) and lends a hand on their family's multi-generational Simmental operation. She plans to attend Iowa State University to major in elementary education with a minor in agronomy. Briana also plans to join the collegiate Soils Evaluation team. Lilian Buie is the daughter of Rebecca Clemons (Fairfield, IA) and the late James Daniel Buie (Batavia, IA). She is the youngest of her family but has carried on the family legacy of producing high-quality livestock. Lilian plans to attend Northern Oklahoma Community College to major in animal science and compete on the collegiate livestock judging team. After finishing her two-year degree, she will continue to a four-year university to earn a bachelor's degree and eventually her doctorate in veterinary medicine. JCCA recognized a majority of today's students do not live on a farm but choose to be a part of the agriculture industry due to family ties or involvement in agricultural organizations for youth. These students are the future of the beef industry; the Jefferson County Cattlemen's Association takes pride in being able to support the industry leaders of tomorrow. This scholarship will be offered again next year - upcoming seniors and college students be on the lookout for the application next spring!

FAIRFIELD SOILS TEAM

The Fairfield FFA State Champion Soils Evaluation Team traveled to El Reno, Okla. last week and competed in the National Land Judging Competition. The team came out 81st out of 99 teams - a true success since most of their team has never seen this kind of soil! Official Individual Placings: Carson Lovelady - 161st, Briana Steele - 279th, Wyatt Lovelady - 332nd, Natalie Steele - 349th.
